

Getting My Paper Accepted for Publication: Frequent Author Questions

Christine Vourakis, PhD, RN

I have a written a paper but I do not know where to send it?

JANE (Journal/Author Name Estimator)

www.biosemantics.org/jane

Begin by entering the title of your paper, the abstract or a list of key words; and, a list of relevant journals that are included in Medline will appear

For example:
Admission Variables as Predictors of Completion in an Adolescent Residential Drug Treatment Program

Understanding of the pre-treatment characteristics of adolescents. A random sample of clients records were selected for this outcomes pilot. Several admission variables were associated with non-completion and included: fire setting, sex for drugs, or addicted parents. First time admission to treatment or referral to treatment by peer. Adolescents admitted to treatment with preexisting major depression might have unique treatment needs. Peer education treatment referral systems may be viable ways to encourage adolescents with drug dependency problems to seek treatment

Journal of Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Nursing, pp. 161-170

JCAPN Volume 18, Number 4, October-December, 2005

Search terms: Adolescent drug dependency treatment, outcome study

JANE can also help you find relevant articles to cite in your paper.

What if I am concerned that my paper needs editing for grammar, punctuation, spelling, readability and flow?

Ask a friend who is an English major to review and edit for you

Hire an English major graduate student at the local university to edit for you

Once I decide on a journal then what do I do?

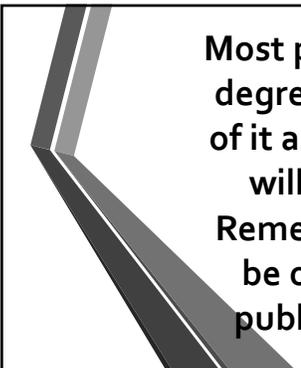

Download the Instructions for Authors and carefully follow directions

If you have questions after reviewing the Instructions for Authors email or call the Editor or his/her designated assistant

What do I do if I receive a letter from the Editor and it says my paper needs major revision?

Most papers will need some degree of revision so think of it as free advice that you will only benefit from. Remember your name will be on the article that is published in perpetuity!